I did notice there's an interesting job posting in Iola if you're looking for a trail related job.

here's the American Trails website: <https://www.americantrails.org/> that Jeff mentioned

12:31:58 From Sean Rodger To Everyone:

How do you find grants for trail projects?

12:32:36 From Elizabeth Burger To Everyone:

Grant funding will be tackled in the January webinar - "How Do We Pay For This?"

12:32:56 From Sean Rodger To Everyone:

Perfect! Thank you

12:38:30 From Ron Wilson To Everyone:

Where do we find info on who produces durable, long-lasting kiosks/outdoor display signs?

12:39:43 From Elizabeth Burger To Everyone:

Ron, et al, the American Trails website Jeff referenced is a great place to find those items. I shared the link earlier. thanks!

Note on the Funders Slide: Health Forward only funds in 3 Kansas counties (Johnson, Wyandotte, and Allen) We will talk more about trail funds in January.

12:49:01 From Elizabeth Burger To Everyone:

Sunflower Foundation loves funding trails and the engineering needed for trails - unfortunately, we do not yet have a date for our next RFP.

Amazing work in Humboldt - and so much started with the trail!

12:52:29 From Clayton Pearson To Everyone:

I went on a sight seeing tour that involved Humboldt Base-Camp. From a bike touring perspective, links to grocery stores is always top of the mind. So it was good to see that connection. And that grocery store is a bragging point whenever you're marketing to touring cyclists.

12:55:32 From Damaris Kunkler To Everyone:

Clayton, thank you so much for that! We have been working hard. We appreciate you coming to Humboldt!

12:56:02 From Elizabeth Burger To Everyone:

Craig, someone just asked me - did the city actually build the kiosk and if so, where did they find the plans to build it?

12:57:58 From Clayton Pearson To Everyone:

Replying to "I went on a sight se..."

Part of the example for bragging rights..... that grocery store, what their selling, connection, and proximity to Basecamp, can point..... you can market to people that hot meal campout food is reasonable. Like Sausage and Egg omelets, ect....

That can let people know it's worth bringing their camp stove.

13:00:09 From Clayton Pearson To Everyone:

Spitballing ideas..... those metal placemarking stamps picture appears to be what Surveyors use. And they pay through the nose on everything. And everything has to meet stringent standards.

Might be able to get with a metal fabrication company and get them cheaper?

Thanks and happy holidays!
